

Canadian immigration and citizenship

Case study worksheet

Step 1: Build your character

Describe your individual. Who are they? How old are they? Where do they come from? Who or what is important to them?

Why do they want to immigrate to Canada?

Pull factors	Push factors

What skills or resources do they have or lack? Consider things such as language, education, health, family support, job offers, savings, access to technology, etc.

Canadian immigration and citizenship

Case study worksheet

Step 2: Immigration

Which immigration program(s) do they qualify for? Explain your reasoning.

Describe the requirements needed for their immigration program.

What are the prerequisites to be eligible for their immigration program?
What steps do they need to take to apply to come to Canada?
What additional steps do they need to take during and after their application?

What challenges might they face as a newcomer to Canada? Consider things such as healthcare, employment, visa/work permit renewals, etc.

Canadian immigration and citizenship

Case study worksheet

Step 3: Citizenship

Imagine that your individual has decided to settle in Canada and that they might want to become a Canadian citizen. They will need to write a Citizenship Test. What other requirements do they need to achieve to apply for citizenship?

What is a PR card? What rights does this status grant?

Provide three (3) examples of things that might be included on the Citizenship Test.

Example	Why do you think this might be included on the Citizenship Test? Why is it an important thing to highlight about Canada?
1.
2.
3.

What will your individual be able to do as a citizen of Canada that they weren't able to before?
